TICKY RAUBENHEIMER

Ticky Raubenheimer is based in Cape Town, South Africa.

Ticky is an independent pharmaceutical consultant specializing in cold chain logistics, mainly for vaccines. Ticky is an accredited assessor for the World Health Organization and UNICEF on effective vaccine management (EVM) practices. He has served as a course director and facilitator for WHO and UNICEF EVM training at global and country levels.

Ticky obtained his MBA at Pretoria University in 1979 with a dissertation on Management and distribution system for vaccines. Ticky also has a degree in Industrial Pharmacy and was involved in pharmaceutical regulatory consulting in his native country. He is an elected Fellow of the Pharmaceutical Society of South Africa. Since a number of years, Ticky has been involved in strategic planning of cold chain logistics systems in various developing countries for both WHO and UNICEF.

Ticky combines his pharmaceutical knowledge and cold chain logistics expertise in supporting efficient strategies and performance of vaccine procurement, storage and distribution.

“Public health and especially child survival is a passion which drives me everyday and which motivates me to assist health workers to implement practical solutions in their everyday challenges to deliver vaccines successfully to the immunizer and the baby” says Ticky.
